Dyke Enlists As RCAF Instructor

Sidney Dyke of Bethel has enlisted as an elementary instructor in the R. C. A. F., and expects to go to Canada the first of next week where he will spend two months in an instructors' school.

Mr. Dyke received his training and instruction at the Hightstown and Moorestown, N. J., airports, and had ground training at the Camden airport. He received his license at the Berlin, N. H., airport and since coming to Bethel about two years ago he has done considerable flying with his American Eagle plane which he has kept in the hangar at the West Bethel field.

72 SIGN TO SUPPORT BETHEL WINTER SPORTS

Seventy-two people signified their interest in the promotion of winter sports in Bethel at the gathering in the Bethel Theatre Sunday afternoon when about 300 listened to talks by R. L. Watson, proprietor of Maple Inn (now the Gateway House), Frank Dow of King & Dexter, Portland, and John Cambridge, skiing instructor.

Mr. Watson spoke of the desirability of developing Bethel's opportunities for general winter sports and skiing, and urged the formation of a local ski club or organization to sponsor winter sports activity.

Mr. Dow felt that Bethel has great possibilities as a sports center. He said that many skiers now prefer open slopes, and told of what the town of Bridgton has accomplished in a few years. He suggested that all join the local group in furthering the town's natural aptitude for such sports. He said that community interest was necessary for success in this line and cited the poor results obtained where local projects had only private enterprise for backing.

He also showed various types of skis and bindings and a short talk on the development of the ski sport in late years. He noted that the largest single order for skis ever placed was filled at South Paris.

John Cambridge was then introduced. He stated that instruction will be given at Anderson slope Saturday afternoons from 2 to 4 o'clock and Sundays from 8 to 10 and 2 to 4 o'clock. He explained that tickets for instruction could be obtained from Mr. Watson and gave the prices for group and individual instruction.

Before showing the talking pictures members of the winter sports committee canvassed the audience and obtained the names of the 72 people who wished to be among the first to sponsor the work.

The pictures were shown with a portable 16 millimeter projector, and were very interesting. Scenes in the White Mountain National Forest and in other National Forests were shown, also views of winter sports in Norway. The general popularity of the sport was featured when life on the ski trails, ski huts and practice slopes was put on the screen. And in general the audience of about 300 was enthused over the proposition.

GATEWAY HOUSE OPENING POSTPONED

The grand opening of the Gateway House, formerly Maple Inn, which was planned for Friday evening of this week, has been indefinitely postponed. On account of the prevalence of the flu and other sickness in the community at present it seems advisable not to have this celebration now, but it may be held at a later date.

The program included a banquet and ball with the Bethel Band and Lord's Orchestra supplying the music. The new Gateway House sign was put up the first of the week and soon the townspeople will become accustomed to the new name.

Former Local Pastor Dies in Worcester

The many friends of Rev. and Mrs. S. T. Achenbach were saddened to learn of his death. He was for several years pastor of the Bethel Congregational church, and is remembered as a sincere Christian gentleman, known and loved by all who recognized his worth and valued his friendship. Bethel friends extend sympathy to Mrs. Achenbach.

Rev. Solomon T. Achenbach, of Worcester, Mass., pastor of the Greendale People's church, died last Thursday in the Worcester Memorial hospital after a month's illness.

Mr. Achenbach became pastor of the church Dec. 1, 1938. After matriculating at Lafayette College, he was graduated from Oberlin Theological Seminary in 1905 and was ordained the same year. He had held pastorates in Vermont and in Bethel and Farmington, Maine. He took advanced courses at Harvard and taught in Talladega College in Alabama.

Y., Mrs. Jennie Trein of Nazareth, Penna., and Mrs. Elizabeth Heimer of Texas.

Funeral services were held at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the church where he had served the past two years as pastor. Rev. Carl D. Skillin, who had served as pastor during Rev. Mr. Achenbach's illness, officiated, assisted by Dr. Fred Field Goodsell of Boston. Burial was in Nazareth, Penna.

MRS. JENNIE KING

Mrs. Jennie Goodwin King died in Bethel at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lucien Littlehale on Friday evening, Jan. 17.

Mrs. King was born in Rumford, October 8, 1865, the daughter of the late Joel and Fannie Goodwin. Coming to Bethel as a small child she attended the Bethel schools and later married Amos King of South Bethel. Mr. and Mrs. King lived at Bethel and Locke Mills until his death in 1922. Seven children blessed this union all of whom grew to manhood and womanhood.

Since Mr. King's death, Mrs. King has spent some time with her children but for the past sixteen years she has been employed as housekeeper in the home of Alph Keene of Buckfield. About two weeks ago she came to Bethel to spend the remainder of the winter with her daughter. She was stricken with an illness on Jan. 9, from which she did not recover.

She is survived by six children, Mrs. Grace Cole of Malden, Mass.; Frederick King of Bath; Ralph King of Bryant's Pond; Mrs. Alice Littlehale of Bethel; Mrs. Cleo Millett of South Paris and Phillip King of Norway. There are 14 grandchildren and three great grandchildren. Two brothers also survive, Eldon Goodwin of South Paris and Will Goodwin of Locke Mills.

Wed 50 Years--Clarks Entertain

Mr. and Mrs. Fred I. Clark celebrated their golden wedding Sunday by entertaining relatives and friends at a dinner party. A special attraction of the dinner was a beautiful wedding cake, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Forbes, Mrs. Burke and Mrs. Simpson. After the dinner letters were read, also a poem written for the occasion by Mrs. Addie Kendall Mason. Dinner guests were: Mrs. Ida Burke, Mrs. Cassie Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. David Forbes, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jordan.

Many friends and neighbors called and offered congratulations during the day. Refreshments of candy, nuts, and fancy cookies were served.

Over 100 cards and letters were received, including a card from Mr. Clark's aunt, Mrs. Annie Hiller of Lynn, Mass.

On account of illness their son, Albert Clark, and family of Melrose, Mass., were unable to be present, but they helped in every way possible to make the day a happy one.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark have spent all their wedded life at their present home on Summer street. Mrs. Clark is a native of Bethel, the daughter of John and Amanda Farwell Kendall, and has always lived in town. Mr. Clark was born in Lynn, Mass., the son of Ira and Anthes Hiller Clark, but came to Bethel when he was six years old.

Since coming to Bethel Mr. Clark has always lived here. When a young man he became a carpenter which trade he followed successfully. For many years he has also been interested in lumbering, operating on his own land and contracting on other tracts.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery. Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Roosevelt Foreshadows 'New Role' for America

Predicts World Based on Human Liberty;
Latvian Minister to U. S. Awaits
Rebirth of His Country.

By BAUKHAGE

National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

"Oh, I dream of Jeannie, with the light brown hair, Borne like a vapor on the summer air..."

WASHINGTON. — I heard that sweet, simple song the night after the President delivered his message on the state of the Union. It wasn't a summer day. The Washington monument was a cold pillar in the sunlight, the Potomac a sheet of shimmering metal beyond bare trees. But that song, its beauty born of the suffering of Stephen Foster; the symbolic monument, and the echoing memory of the solemn voice of the President blended together to make an unforgettable moment in which I suddenly seemed to see a changing America, a nation stepping forward on a new and unknown road.

I have said before that many of the President's close advisors believed that he saw, growing out of the war in Europe, a new role for the United States, the role of world leadership. Each day's developments seem to confirm the belief that such is the part Mr. Roosevelt expects the nation to play and that if he can he will direct us in that path, the path he mapped in his two recent speeches.

The America which produced "Jeannie with the light brown hair" had disappeared even before Admiral Dewey blazed the way to empire for America in Manila bay. The last vestiges of American provincialism were trampled into the mud of France by 2,000,000 pairs of American boots. We thought, and some of us fervently hoped for a while we were going to leave Europe to her own devices, after 1919, forget, if we could the white crosses we left there and tend our own fireside.

Isolationist Sentiment Weakens. We have tried for a year to stuff up our ears at the roar of the Stukas but each explosion over Europe sounds nearer. The majority of letters which I receive are still very much against any step which would lead us into war but the congressmen coming in for the new session report a weakening of the isolationist feeling.

One thing was clear when the President delivered his message to the joint session of congress on January 6. Although many minds there did not meet his, though much debate was to follow, it was plain that his plan to make America an arsenal for the democracies had majority support, that step by step he was doing the leading and step by step congress was following.

I watched the session from the floor of the house of representatives for radio has a little room at the side of the chamber to the left of the rostrum. There was a long silence when the President was announced. The audience rose and stood with hardly a whisper. Finally the President appeared at the entrance just to the right of the speaker's desk and walked slowly up the ramp between his aide and a secret service man. Then came the applause punctuated with only a few of the shrill "rebel yells." And throughout the speech, with few exceptions, the handclapping came only when the President emphasized a passage.

Foreshadows New Role.

But to me, the significant lines, the ones indicating that the President was foreshadowing this new part he felt America must play, were these: "In the future days which we seek to make secure, we look forward to a world founded upon four essential human freedoms.

"The first is freedom of speech and expression—everywhere in the world..."

"The third is freedom from want, which, translated into world terms, means economic understandings which will secure to every nation a healthy peacetime life for its inhabitants—everywhere in the world."

Reading them over now in cold type they don't have quite the same effect. But perhaps you recall, if you heard the broadcast, how he emphasized, climactically, the phrase "everywhere in the world." It was plain his concern did not stop at our own frontiers, but "everywhere in the world."

Then he went on to describe his "new order" quite as specifically as Hitler has described his:

"That is no vision of a distant millennium. It is a definite basis for a kind of world attainable in our own time and generation. That kind of world is the very antithesis of the so-called 'new order' of tyranny which the dictators seek to create with the crash of a bomb."

"To that new order we oppose the greater conception—the moral order. A good society is able to face schemes of world domination and foreign revolutions alike without fear."

Admirer of Wilson.

It must be remembered that Franklin Roosevelt is a great admirer of Woodrow Wilson. We have forgotten what a tremendous following President Wilson's ideas had for a short time among the peoples of Europe. We only recall now how tragically his plan failed.

I recall very well the tremendous ovations Wilson was given in Europe. I am certain that Keynes is right when he says that the peoples (not the governments) of Europe ac-knowledgeed Woodrow Wilson "not as a victor only but almost as a prophet."

As I said, the world has forgotten this. But Franklin Roosevelt has not. It is within the realm of reason that he feels, having lived and studied these chapters of history, that he may be able to avoid the pitfalls of the past and succeed where Woodrow Wilson failed as a world leader.

Latvian Minister Retains His Post

Alfred Bilmanis has moved. That was not highly important news in the diplomatic chancelleries of the world, although Dr. Bilmanis is, according to our records, a minister plenipotentiary to the United States from Latvia. But it will be of interest to more than one reader of this column who has drunk lemonade in the Latvian legation in Washington, and trooped up the stairs, past the stained glass window to look upon the marvelous maiden of wax in her gay peasant costume and great amber necklace.

For Alfred Bilmanis, like the former head of the little Baltic country now under Russian domination was a great and enthusiastic friend of the Four-H. For many years when the Four-H clubs encamped in the Washington Mall they met this cheerful round-faced man who told them about organization in Latvia which Carl Ulmanis, president of the Baltic state had founded, patterning them after the farm clubs in this country. Ulmanis once before had been driven from his country by the Russian government. He came to America where he became an ardent student of our farms and our farm methods, our agricultural schools and the various activities connected with rural life in this country.

Under Russian Yoke.

Now Latvia is under the Russian yoke again and the 4,000 young people who were members of the organization which President Ulmanis and his representative in this country, Alfred Bilmanis did so much to encourage, are probably all turned into "Young Communists" if they exist at all.

Since the United States government has not recognized the recent seizure of the Baltic states by the Soviets, Dr. Bilmanis still remains minister of Latvia even if Latvia, as a government, no longer exists in Russian eyes. But he was unable to maintain the old legation where he often entertained members of the Four-H and where guests loved to admire his art treasures.

BILLIONS:
In Double Figures

Congress knew what was coming when the Roosevelt message on the budget was handed them, but it was a shock none the less.

Some things shock one even when one knows in advance all about them.

Seventeen and a half billions. More billions (unmentioned and extra-budgetary) when the lend-lease plan goes into effect.

A debt limit probably up to 60 billions. Heavy-headed congressmen barked back to the days when they worried about awarding a mere pittance of a billion and a half to World War veterans for the soldier bonus.

Yet the temper of the congress was such that even while being shot back on their heels by the magnitude of the thing, they agreed it would pass, and the lend-lease measures along with it.

And as to the "all-out" aid to Britain, the congress and the admini-

Senator Allen W. Barkley of Kentucky, senate majority leader, and Senator Walter F. George of Georgia, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, are pictured as they looked over the "lend-lease" bill before presenting it to congress.

that it were going up to 150, or at least to 100.

The budget and the presidential message were received in kind across the nation. The fact that the president proposed a bill to increase the debt limit was a relief, while the Roosevelt press was relatively quiet.

But the real question was whether the lend-lease plan would be accepted. It was quickly apparent that the lend-lease plan was safe in the hands of the President and Congress. Whatever action the president will take, the British will be ready to go.

SHOCK:

For Isolationists

The isolationists of America are now shouting Europe is slipping away from us. They had a long time to do so.

On Jan. 15, 1941, the United States declared that it was not a party to the League of Nations. The United States is now a free agent in the world.

Nye, a leader of the non-interventionists, hasn't the faintest hope that the lend-lease bill (dubbed "black check out for England") will be defeated in either house.

He, however, flatly calls this bill a "declaration of war." He gave the 35-35 positive vote figure in case President Roosevelt should, after passage of the unofficial declaration, ask the congress to "make it official" with a formal declaration.

Nye's pessimistic view of the point prediction of passage of the bill in some form was echoed by most of his colleagues in the non-intervention bloc, and they seemed ready to center their fight on a basis of some form of revision of the (to them) more drastic provisions.

President Roosevelt, admitting the bill gave him vast powers, sat back quietly waiting for victory in the voting, saying "I know it, but somebody had to have the power."

BRITISH:
Show Speed

Rivalling even the blitzkrieg that swamped the low countries and knocked France out of the war was a swift attack on Libya put on by the forces of Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, trim British commander of the top-flight colonials in Africa.

Learning their lesson in Flanders that shock, surprise and speed are the primary qualifications of a successful attack, the British have kept going, even at the cost of getting hundreds of dangerous miles away from their sources of supply.

The despairing cry of Tommy Atkins in Flanders fields and on the road to Dunkerque was "give us planes!" General Wavell was not holding back the planes in the African offensive. Indeed inside information was that of the RAF pilots the banner men were in the Mediterranean offensive, operating both on the Albanian front and in Africa.

Sidi Barrani fell to the Italians without resistance. There they bogged down, never reaching the next stop, Marsa Matruh. Graziani halted and prepared, and waited for supplies that never came. Suddenly the British struck.

Sidi Barrani fell, then in quick succession Salum and Parga. Then Tobruk was cut off, and the spearhead of the attack split in one direction toward Benghazi, the capital, and toward Derna, the only remaining coastal town of importance.

Friends critics and editorialists were warning Wavell of "over-reaching" but Wavell's answer to these was to move faster and farther.

After Bardia, the British announced 44,000 officers and men killed or captured. Rendered ineffective since the campaign started, the estimate was around 100,000, or half Graziani's army.

Australian forces are being given much of the credit for the successful drive by the force of the British Empire. Famous for their courage and ability in the war of 1914-18 the Aussies had their first major test in the battle for Bardia and they lived up to expectations. When the time came to attack the city there was no stopping them.

GREEKS:
Near Victory

Even if the Germans stage a "movie show" rescue act, and come rushing in at the last moment to knock out Greece, the Greeks have had their hour.

They stood on the verge of a complete victory with the fall of Kifissos. Around Kifissos, the Italians had made a determined stand. Regrettably, the "crack" Romanian troops had been hurled into the defense.

The battle was fought amid severest snowstorms, some of near-blizzard proportions. But finally the Greeks had their way, and Kifissos was abandoned.

Series of this abandonment show how vulnerable the retreating army is in modern warfare, especially when inferior in the air. The Italians, according to the reports, hastened from the field of battle in long columns, winding along mountain passes and the rough Albanian roads.

What a mark for British and Greek bombers, especially the eight-machine-gunned fighter craft of the Hurricanes and Spitfires type. The British reported that their planes did devastating damage to the retreating Italian columns.

Men so "strafed" during retreat find little stomach for turning and making a stand. Yet turn they had to, at Tepelini, or the roads to Valona and Tirana would be wide open.

DICTATOR METAXAS
His Greek forces 'pushed on.'

The Greeks reached the outskirts of Tepelini—and this, according to military men, is the most vital town of all Albania.

FIRE:

And the Reply

As Germany continued its newest policy of raining 100 fire bombs to one explosive on Britain's more or less inflammable cities and towns, especially including London, the British found two replies, each (they hoped) more or less effective.

Basic defense against this warfare has been the naming of a new corps of volunteer roof-top fire-watchers, who have been showing extraordinary bravery in quenching blazes as soon as started, even during the heaviest bombing raids.

Second reply has been an increased tempo of British bombing attack on invasion ports and German cities. Bremen having been given a going over that lasted three days, and this was followed by an invasion port attack in which more than 500 British planes took part, more than 100 of them bombers and the rest machine-gunning fighters who held the Nazis on the ground.

JUNK:

Dealers 'Told'

Leon Hardtman, styled by his introduction on the speaker's platform as the administration's "No. 1 Economist," but officially titled "Defense Commissioner for Price Stabilization," talked turkey to the scrap-metal suppliers at their institute convention.

Practically he said: "The government is not satisfied with the current price of scrap metal—$10 a ton in October—$24 a ton."

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

LONDON:—The "Free French Navy" had 60 merchantmen plying the seven seas, and 30 vessels of war taking part in operations against the Axis powers.

VICHY:—The government of German-occupied France issued a decree against Jewish participation in business enterprise, affecting 11,000 establishments.

CANBERRA, AUSTRALIA:—A well-organized spy system, operating on the Australian coast, was believed to be supplying German sea raiders with movements of ships in South Pacific waters.

BERLIN:—German planes were beginning the use of rocket-power in starting the larger types of bombers for a takeoff, permitting the carrying of a heavier load of explosives.

NEW YORK:—Sabotage was feared in the destruction by fire of

"We are giving you a last chance to handle this yourselves."

"Otherwise we will handle you." Junk dealers and brokers looked solemn. Then he said:

"We've got to have a supply of scrap steel. We'll get it where we can."

"As for me, I'd make a deal with the Devil to lick Hitler."

Solemn faces broadened, broke into cheers. The convention broke up, the dealers resolved to "go home and be good boys."

RUSSIA:

Scouts Around

The Soviet, acting on the heels of America's "all-out" effort to aid Britain and the democracies to win, announced a treaty with Nazi Germany whereby "Russia would feed Nazis."

Diplomatic rustlings and whisperings followed this report, all of which aimed at knowing "what next?" from Russia. Indignance in some quarters was followed by this from the Soviet:

"The treaty with Germany on foodstuffs and supplies is not aimed at any other power. We are seeking similar alliances with other nations."

All of which seemed to boil down to more Muscovite fishing in troubled waters—this time for an export market—with the seas boiling with torpedoes and mines, if not actually closed.

ESPIONAGE:

In Court

Constitutionality of the sweeping espionage act of 1917 was upheld by the U. S. Supreme court. The law makes it a crime to obtain or transmit any "information respecting the national defense to be used to the injury of the United States or to the advantage of any foreign nation."

The case originated in 1933 when two men violated the law by furnishing U. S. naval intelligence to Russia.

DRAFT:

Second Edition

The first edition of the draft, as is so often the case in publications, was only a sort of trial balloon, to test out the machinery and to find out something about distribution terms and balances.

The second edition, well under way, was really the "McGuffey." Around 45,000 young men in the nation saw their names come up, were herded into their induction centers, given vastly improved and specialized medical examinations, and then more than 70 per cent of them went off to one camp or another.

The draft machinery, oiled in the first call, worked much more smoothly this time, and selective service heads in many states reported questionnaires on hand, and enough Class 1-A boys chosen to have filled a call for twice as many soldiers.

Camps were still lagging, however, and yet the draft officials felt sure that the quota set for the first year might still all be in uniform by July.

NEW DRAFT:

Legion Plan

When next fall rolls around, it has generally been expected President Roosevelt will call for a new enrollment in the selective draft. The idea behind this is to take care of those who have attained their twenty-first birthday since October, 1940, and to exempt those who have passed their thirty-sixth birthday. The new enrollment would call for new drawing of numbers which might see some lifted to top positions who new are far down the list.

The American Legion has come forward with a new plan. It calls for enrollment in a new selective draft only of youths between the ages of 18 and 21. Moreover it would be a permanent arrangement, not like the present law which is operative only during the present threatening emergency. It would call for compulsory military training of the nation's youth as a matter of regular national policy.

French Hero

NEW YORK CITY.—E. Casanave-Cabanne, a demobilized French soldier, is shown as he arrived in New York aboard the SS San Domingue. He sports a Croix de Guerre, awarded him for shooting down a Heinkel bomber during the "battle of France."

UNREST:

Reports Grow

Surveys of unrest in conquered democracies or semi-democracies in Europe showed increases in hostility to Germany and Italy, and the newspaper evidence that Italy was suffering internal pains was growing.

The latter stories were mostly centered around "uncensored" reports filtering back to the United States apparently from members of the Mazzini, Italian-American organization opposed to Fascism.

One report, typical, said 500 of these men were on one Italy-bound ship, landed, dispersed through the country, and were spreading unrest.

Most of the other stories emanated from returning travelers who had been in France, Norway, or other occupied zones, and had managed to make a getaway.

Tales of hunger, of the autocratic domineering of the soldiery, of financial sabotage, of purchases of goods for marks that practically amounted to theft on a super-wholesale basis, were common.

Quoting THE BETHEL NEWS
Week by Week History in 1901

JAN. 23, 1901

Collision has followed collision in swift succession along this division of the Grand Trunk
during the past few weeks, but the most frightful one of all, that totally eclipsed all the others, occurred near the Walker's Mills grade within one and one-half miles of the Bethel Station early last Friday morning, when two heavy freight trains, each drawn by two engines and running at some 30 miles per hour met in terrible collision just where to place the blame for this terrible wreck, cannot yet be determined;
various rumors are afloat, but none of them appears sufficiently reliable to be given here, but it seems that the trains were to have crossed at West Bethel, but owing to some carelessness in forwarding orders, it was allowed to pass that station.

The eastbound train, section 4 of
No. 92, was in charge of Conductor
T. Foley, and engineer Barker and Hill and the west bound No. 85, was in charge of conductor B. C.
Damon, and engineer Roberts and Thompson. As many of our readers know there is quite a grade at Walker's Mills, and the east bound train was running at an unusual speed to gain sufficient momentum to make the grade and it was just west of the grade when they were at full speed that the terrible crash came, and in an instant four engines and 13 loaded cars lay in one frightful mass, extending a distance of not more than 10 rods along the track but piled some 40 feet high.

All of the train men on the east bound train saw their danger in time to jump, as did also those on the leading engine of the west bound train, but engineer Peter Thompson, fireman Clarence R.
Tebbetts and brakeman W. C.
Oliver all of whom were on the second engine coming west, were killed. Engineer Thompson was taken from the wreck alive and Drs. Hill and Sturtevant were summoned, but death came a few minutes before they arrived. Fireman Tebbetts and brakeman Oliver were buried in the ruins and their bodies completely consumed.

The injured were fireman Courney and engineer Roberts. Courney received a scalp wound and a general shaking up but is doing nicely and will recover soon. Engineer
Roberts received no serious wounds.
He is from Gorham, N. H.

Of the three men killed, Tebbetts was a single man and lived in Augusta. Oliver lived in Bangor and leaves a wife and three children and Thompson was from Montreal and leaves a young wife whom he married about five months ago.

Early Friday morning the news of the wreck was abroad and people flocked from all sections to view the scene, all of whom looked upon a sight which they will always remember. All who had cameras took them along, but smoke from the consuming mass made it difficult to get a good view. A large wrecking crew was early at work and continued to work like beavers, but it was not until 6 p. m. that a tunnel of sufficient width was cut through the mass to allow trains to pass, and when the afternoon express passed through at that hour, the burning wreck towered up for several feet at either side.

Two wrecking crews have been at work since Friday morning and several days will be required yet before it is all cleared up.

MR. AND MRS. FRED CLARK
MARRIED 50 YEARS

Following is the poem written by
Mrs. Mason:

GREETINGS!
To Mr. and Mrs. Fred Clark
January 19th, 1941

Fifty years have fled forever
Down Time's fleeting stream away

Since you two joined hands together—
NOW IT'S GOLDEN WEDDING
DAY.

With a smile for all life's trials
And the GRIT to WORK and WIN,

With a HELPFUL hand for others
—Busy people you have been!

Once in youthful years so happy
Was a day all filled with joy.

When to love and cheer you always,
Came a fair-faced baby boy;

Yes, he was a laughing youngster
And before him you bowed low,
GIVING him a ROYAL welcome
Five and forty years ago.

O, the years went by so swiftly
Into long pants quick he grew While you worked and planned together

Soon his school days were all through.

Then to other fields of progress
Went a son, to manhood grown,
Doing well what e'er the project
Through the years that since have flown.

Then he met a gracious maiden
That to him, meant more than life.

And one day he came to bring you
A dear daughter—his young wife,
Years sped on and with them
children

Of sweet young girls and one brave boy.

Fifty years you two together
Have known mingled joy and pain

Made the best of stormy weather.
And we know you would again

If, for you, times wheel turned backward

To those days of youth so free
You'd climb all heights with vim and courage

If together you could be.

Loyal friends bring many a message

Of their love and friendship true,
With a wish for happy memories
And success in all you do.

Now on memories burnished tablet
YOUR names are carved to STAY,

And we wish for you ALL blessings
On your GOLDEN WEDDING
DAY.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the M. E.
church for flowers, the orders and all friends who helped to make this a memorable day.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, the Supreme Ruler over all has again removed from our midst one who has always been a faithful and beloved member and whose presence at our meetings will be sadly missed.

Resolved, that we as the members of Mountain View Grange extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family in their sad affliction by the great loss of their husband and father.

Resolved, that we as members deeply mourn the loss of our worthy Master, Angus Fraser, but the memory of his character will ever be with us. He has left the assurance that he joined the great throng above where pain and sorrow never enter.

Resolved, that our charter be draped for thirty days, that a copy of these be placed upon the records of our Grange, one sent to the bereaved family and one printed in the Oxford County Citizen.

A social time followed. Sister Carrie Wight told Bro. Scarborough's fortune, which caused much merriment.

DEANNA DANCES IN "SPRING PARADE"

Deanna Durbin dances! For the first time in her three-year screen career, Deanna Durbin will be seen doing specialty dances on the screen. They are to be seen in her new picture, Universal's "Spring Parade," which comes to the Bethel Theatre on Monday and Tuesday, Jan. 27 and 28.

One number is a wild, folk-dance. This number, for which the star rehearsed for weeks under the direction of Larry Ceballos, is performed with Mischea Auer as her partner.

The other number is the beautiful Viennese waltz, which she dances with her leading man, Robert Cummings.

Adapted from the original story by Ernst Marischka by screenwriters Bruce Manning and Felix Jackson, the plot concerns a young village girl who goes to the big city where she finds the romance predicted by a fortune teller.

On Wednesday and Thursday of next week will be seen "Too Many Girls," with a great popular cast including Lucille Ball, Ann Miller, Desi Arnaz, Marie Wilson, Linda Hayes, Moroni Olsen, Gale Storm and Ernest Truex.

Next week's schedule ends with double feature shows on Friday and Saturday including the Junior G-Men serial, "Bad Man from Red Butte" starring Johnny Mack Brown and Bob Baker will please the western fans while "Give Us Wings" presents the Dead End Kids as their usual selves in this programme. A novel background is provided, however, with the story unfolding against a backdrop of aeronautics and crop dusting. Laughs predominate, but the film has a novelty chase with airplane and auto which is good thrill stuff. Story deals with a bunch of kids who are plenty short of required flying time. They are hired by a cheap promoter to fly outmoded "Jennys" in the business of crop-dusting. The aeronautics commission catches up with the promoter, portrayed by Victor Jory, but not before a few rough and tumbles and a particularly good brawl at a Southern fish fry. The kids, Jory and Wallace Ford are all good in their roles. Anne Gwynne, who also plays a minor part in "Spring Parade," supplies the pulchritude.

LIFE COULD BE SO NICE!

She was very proud of her new house, tiny but perfect from the white enamel stove in the kitchen to the flower boxes at the entrance and she loved Jimmy's new car. It was new to them, anyhow, and took them the hundred miles to their parents' homes and back every week end without a murmur.

"Life could be so nice," she said. "If it weren't for this awful war. Why do you suppose men want to fight each other? Jim says there's really plenty of everything to go around."

"Yes," I said, "there is plenty of everything and it goes around pretty well in this country. Take yourself, for instance. You and Jim haven't much money but you have this sweet house and a car. And you're perfectly sure that some day you're going to have a still bigger house and a better car. It's things and hopes like these, which you take for granted, that people in the countries ruled by dictators are so eager for. It isn't by accident that Hitler has promised his people an inexpensive car. If he could make that promise good so that almost every family in the country had its own little automobile, it would make more difference than all the territorial conquests in the world.

"And what do you think the Russians have been struggling for all these years? One of our most important newspaper women said what struck her when she went to Russia about 12 years ago was that the revolution she had gone to observe was actually an attempt at a violently imposed industrial advance. The Russians were trying to change from a feudal system of great land owners and peasant labor to the electric age almost overnight. What they were really doing was trying to catch up with us. Their aims haven't been achieved because they are the result not of a political but of industrial revolution.

As you wash your dishes with water that flows piping hot from a faucet and clean your rugs with electricity and go places in your car, remember this. Russia and Germany have overturned governments, upset order and established a reign of terror in order to get what we have already... distribution of the fruits of modern mass production among the people as a whole."

Household News

By Eleanor Howe

You may have a mental filing system for your menus, or you may jot down your meal ideas and slip them into a recipe box. Either way, the chances are that mid-winter finds you in the market for some fresh and workable ideas for what to feed the family.

First and foremost, you will want your winter menus to be warming and heartening. The calorie content may be a little higher because more energy is needed to supply heat and because the cold stimulates us to more activity. Vitamin suppliers need to be carefully watched. With your garden adrift with snow, not so many fresh vegetables and fruits will find their way to your table.

Even if fresh peas, green beans and vine-ripened tomatoes are out of reach, almost any market boasts whole bins filled with apples, sweet potatoes, cabbage and carrots—all of them potent sources of vitamins. Plenty of grapefruit, oranges and tomato juice will help to replace the fresh tomatoes.

But now for the menus!

Red Cabbage Salad.

2 cups red cabbage (shredded fine)
3 tart, red cooking apples (unpeeled) (diced)
1 cup grated carrot
4 tablespoons brown sugar
3 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons French dressing (prepared)

Buy a small, solid young head of red cabbage, one with thin, tender leaves. Remove core, and shred very fine. Place shredded cabbage in ice water for 30 minutes to crisp it. Combine cabbage, diced apple and grated carrot. Mix brown sugar, vinegar and French dressing and pour over salad. Toss lightly to mix.

Hungarian Goulash
1 1/2 pounds beef round (cubed)
3 tablespoons fat
3 beef bouillon cubes
3 cups hot water
1/2 clove garlic
1/2 bay leaf
1/2 teaspoon salt
Few grains cayenne pepper
2 cups cubed potatoes
1 1/2 tablespoons butter
1 1/2 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon paprika
1 cup canned tomatoes (sieved)

Have beef cut in 1 1/2-inch cubes. Brown on all sides in hot fat, then add bouillon cubes dissolved in hot water. Add garlic, bay leaf, salt and cayenne pepper and simmer the mixture for 2 hours. Remove garlic and bay leaf, and add potatoes cut in 1/2-inch cubes. Cook 30 minutes, then remove 1/4 cup of broth from pan and cool. Combine with melted butter, flour, and paprika and blend into a smooth paste. Add to goulash, stirring constantly; cook until thick, about 5 minutes. Add sieved tomato and cook 10 more minutes.

Brazil Nut Cherry Pie.
2 1/2 cups sour, red cherries (canned)
1 cup cherry juice
3 tablespoons cornstarch
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon butter
1/2 cup sliced Brazil nuts

Drain cherries, and set aside the juice. Blend cornstarch and sugar in a saucepan; add cherry juice. Place over heat and cook, stirring constantly until thickened, about 3 minutes. Remove from the heat, add drained cherries, butter and Brazil nuts. Pour the filling into a 9-inch pie plate lined with pastry. Moisten the edge of the pie with cold water; arrange lattice of pastry strips across pie. Press down rim with fork. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) 15 minutes, then in moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for 30 minutes.

Tomato Chicken Soup.
2 tablespoons onion (finely chopped)
1 tablespoon butter

2 No. 1 cans condensed chicken soup
1 No. 1 can condensed tomato soup
1 1/2 cups water
1 1/2 cups light cream or milk
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon white pepper

Saute onion in butter until yellow and transparent. Add chicken soup, tomato soup, water, milk, salt and white pepper. Stir thoroughly and heat to serving temperature. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Accenting the Width Of a Narrow Room

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

ON A Thursday afternoon the south end of a certain dining room was as shown here in the upper sketch. The following Monday it appeared as shown below. Cupboards had been added to display china and give storage space, yet the room actually seemed wider and more spacious than before.

The transformation was made by the handy man with no tools but a hammer, saw and screw driver plus the aid of his willing helper with needle, thread and paint brush. The new curtain treatment, shown in the sketch, made the window seem wider and the strong horizontal lines of the cupboards also helped to create an illusion of width. The cupboards were eight inches deep and made of one-inch lumber with doors of plywood for the lower part.

NOTE: Mrs. Spears' Books 1 and 3 are full of other practical ideas for making and hanging curtains. Each book has 32 pages of pictures showing you how to modernize and beautify your home. Send order to:

The progress of the war and the need for more troops led to the formation of the 1st Airborne Division. The division was formed in 1943 and was the first of its kind in the British Army. It was composed of paratroopers and glider troops. The division was trained for airborne operations and was the first to be deployed in a major battle, the Battle of Arnhem, in September 1944. The division was the only one to be deployed in a major battle and was the only one to be deployed in a major battle.

Economic Highlights

Happenings That Affect the Dinner Pails, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual. National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

The President's extraordinary "State of the Nation" speech to the new Congress was received with mixed emotions. The majority of larger newspapers, which are pro-British in policy, approved it with some reservations. So did most of the leading commentators. However, in Congress there was criticism to the effect that the President did not give enough particulars—and that it looked as if he intended to put this country deeper into European affairs than it had ever been before. At the same time surveys indicate that the President's proposal to lend Britain arms and other implements of war, which she is supposed to repay in kind or equivalent at the end of hostilities, will eventually go through. The non-interventionist bloc, however, of which Senator Wheeler is now leader, says that it intends to fight the President's program to the last ditch.

The President firmly fixed this country's foreign policy. According to him, that policy has three facets: First, we are committed to an all-inclusive national defense. Second, we are committed to support all nations which are resisting aggression and, in the President's words, "thereby keeping war from our hemisphere." Third, we will never acquiesce in a peace "dictated by aggressors and sponsored by appeasers." The President stressed his opinion that this policy is completely non-partisan, and represents the will of the majority of the people, whatever their political affiliations.

It is obviously the Administration belief that it would be impossible for this country to live in the same world with Hitler, and at the same time maintain democratic processes and principles. As he has said on several occasions, there would be no peace—there would be only an armed truce, which would inevitably result in a ruinous armament race and the establishment of a permanent military economy for us, no less than for the Axis. There are many who disagree with this doctrine, but, so far as legislative influence is concerned, they seem to be a minority now.

It is probable that the President's speech, coupled with his "fireside chat" of a week before, was the strongest talk ever given by the head of a great nation to the heads of other great nations. It could be easily construed as an ipso facto declaration of war, even though Mr. Roosevelt said that he did not intend for it to be so taken. But Italy and Germany were relatively calm in their comments. It looks as if they were willing to take a great deal before formally going to war with a which in view of Italy's stunning reverses in Africa, is easily understandable. The Axis has not lost the war, but its plans are being scheduled by any means.

The possibility remains of Congress declaring war on Germany and or Italy but rolls of Congress indicate that only a small majority would vote for war at this time. The bulk of the lawmakers apparently feel that we can get away with helping England with every resource at our command, yet not fighting ourselves.

Magnitude of projected aid to England will not be fully known for some time. As the budget message shows, it will run far into the billions. It will involve the construction and delivery of many merchant ships to embattled Britain. And it may very likely involve the transfer of more of our naval vessels.

The 77th Congress will be responsible for our national defense.

which includes domestic problems to do with wages and hours, taxation, relief, and government loaning both at home and abroad. It has the countries of South America to consider; just loaning them money is but a small part of the job of improving our relations with them. Also, as one of its greatest jobs, it will have to consider adopting a fiscal policy that is in the opposite direction to the present easy money policies of the Administration. Financial experts are going to make a determined stand to return the financing of our government into sounder channels.

The Federal Reserve Board recently reported that its index of industrial production reached an all-time high in December—and was equal to 136 per cent of the 1935-39 average on a seasonally adjusted basis. Yet security markets remain comparatively dormant.

Reason: The prospect of new and big taxes is a deterrent—only the naive believe that Congress will approve this year's gigantic war budget without attempting to raise part of it through additional taxation.

On top of that, the cooler heads know that a war boom is apt to prove a bubble which will explode when pricked—and peace is the pin that will eventually prick it.

Government officials are said to be having plans now for cushioning the shock. But many economists doubt if much can be done. They still feel that great artificial booms are more than likely to be followed by great depressions. And no one knows what the world will be like when this unprecedentedly destructive war finally ends.

FLYING CADETS

The War Department has just announced that non-college men will have an opportunity to qualify for army pilot training as Flying Cadets by means of a written examination which will be given on February 11, 1941. Candidates who pass this written examination will be appointed as Flying Cadets with the same status as those who have completed two years college work.

To be eligible for the examination the candidates must be unmarried citizens between the ages of twenty and twenty-six inclusive, and must have passed the physical examination for Flying Cadets. The physical examination may be obtained either at the Boston Army Base or at Westover Field, Chicopee Falls, Mass. Application blanks may be secured by writing Corps Area Recruiting Officer, Boston Army Base, or by calling at or writing the Army Recruiting Station in the Federal Court House at Portland, Maine.

Nine subjects are included in the written examinations as follows: U. S. History, English Grammar and Composition, General History, Geography, Arithmetic, Higher Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry, and Elementary Physics.

A successful Cadet receives training valued at $20,000 and the commission of Second Lieutenant. Air Corps Reserve, upon completion of the seven months training period.

The quota of Flying Cadets for New England is one hundred forty each month. During December ninety-five were accepted. It is necessary that we have more men apply for Flying Cadets. All eligible young men are urged to take advantage of this opportunity of obtaining valuable training.

Recruiting in Oxford County for the ground force of the Air Corps has been very active. Three additional men have just enlisted from Dixfield: William M. Leighton, who has been employed in Roger Holman's sawmill; W. Conrad Childs, who was employed by the Berst-Forster Dixfield Company; Frank H. Ham, who until recently has been employed in steel mills at Pittsburgh.

In addition Hartley H. Mowatt, R. F. D. No. 2, Bridgton, enlisted in the Coast Artillery.

The enlistments for the State of Maine for the Ground Force of the Air Corps is ten percent ahead of the quota assigned. Maine had a quota of ninety men and as of January 2nd 1941 ninety-nine enlistments have been obtained. The entire Corps Area however is still twenty-percent under the quota. This proves that the interest in enlistments in Maine is at a very high pitch.

Enlistments will continue to be made from Maine until the Corps Area quota is filled. The ground force of the Air Corps at the present time for young men to learn a useful trade. Due to the expansion of the Army Air Force many thousands of men will be required in the Ground Force to properly service, care for, and operate planes. The men who are enlisting at this time are getting in on the ground floor and will have the best opportunity of obtaining advancement in rank and pay.

A very important point that is overlooked by many young men at the present time is that the type of training received after enlisting for three years is much different from the type of training that would be received if they wait until called in the selective draft. The draftees will receive very little specialized training because practically the entire one year of service will be required to obtain the basic knowledge that every soldier must have. The specialists in the army and the men in the higher ratings will of necessity be selected from men who enlist for three years.

Any young man who wishes to obtain as much value as possible from his enlistment in the army will do well to consider enlisting for a three year term in some branch as the Ground Force of the Air Corps rather than waiting until called in the draft. Enlistments in the Ground Force of the Air Corps are open to young men between the ages of eighteen and thirty-five and who have either graduated from high school or have had enough mechanical experience to be enlisted to a journeyman's rating. Any young man who is interested in enlisting should immediately contact a local recruiting chairman.

It has just been announced by the War Department that enrollments in the regular army reserve was closed on December 31, 1940 and no further applications will be accepted.

SILENCE REIGNS

"When I walk up to a piano they don't laugh."
"Are you a musical genius?"
"No, I'm the installment collector."

THEY SAY—

George A. Eastwood, President, Armour & Co.: "The success and prosperity of Americans in every field of enterprise rest on cooperation, tolerance and understanding which will keep every part of the machine operating. Let there be an end to bickering and quarreling; let there be recognition that we are all in the same boat, that we will remain afloat together or we will sink together and that the surest way we can keep ourselves afloat is to keep our neighbors afloat."

Paul Garrett, Vice-President, General Motors Corporation: "The profit system means, financially, taking in more than you can pay out. Unless a business can do that it soon fails. In a broader sense, the profit system means opportunity to grow. That has been the American dream. From day laborer to foreman to boss to owner of the business is the established route of progress—familiar here as it is almost unknown anywhere else open to any man regardless of rank who helps along the process of serving the American customer better."

Clifford S. Stilwell, Vice-President, Warner and Swasey Company: "Granted that all our social reforms are commendable and granted that the day may come when we shall insure their permanent establishment, of what value are they if they fail in the present emergency? This war for America is being fought at the lathe."

Many industries contribute to the production of the various products needed for national defense. In spite of the fact that a modern battleship is 93 per cent steel, these other materials are among those needed in considerable quantities for its construction: copper, lead, zinc, aluminum, cork, wood, asbestos, cement, and glass.

Right now you can't get a word in edgewise about war. GOULD-NORWAY GAMES HERE FRIDAY

On Friday Gould will play host to the teams of Norway High School. The preliminary game, starting at 7:15 will pit the two second teams together in battle. The local understudies have won one game and lost one both by 1 point margins. The Alumni won the first game 26-25 and Woodstock High was defeated 19-18. The strength of the visitors is not known but judging from past games this should be a close and exciting game.

The varsity teams starting at 8:30 will be another of those keenly contested Western Maine Conference battles. The visitors are coming with nearly all veteran men and should show a classy aggregation to pit against the Gould Academy "Huskies" who are playing a brand of ball totally unexpected this year. The two local forwards, Nick Amato and Billy Robertson, both little fellows, have shown a great brand of fight, teamwork, and basket tossing. Gould's guards, Bud Clough and Lee Hutchins are aggressive, fast, good team players, and always a threat in the scoring. Sid Howe has played some fine ball at center and is dangerous under the basket. Blanchard, playing at both center and forward, has improved and does his bit for the team.
